You who do not fear the dead, learn well the song that is inscribed behind me... In several areas of Hyrule, if Navi turns green, Link can play the "Storm Song" to evoke a wingless Fairy that restores Hearts and the Magic Meter. After traveling back in time, the young Link uses this knowledge to cause the damage that led to the Wind Mill Man's fury[3]. Therefore, Link could not have learned the song if he had not continued to play it at Windmill Man's in the past. The opening section of the "Storm Song" resembles the opening section of the theme Fortezza/Castello di Super Mario World 2: Yoshi Island. The thunder that hits the earth "my anger!" A + AA Flat (Majora Mask) A @ AA "What?! You got a flute! What the hell! That reminds me of that time seven years ago! Then a bad boy came here and played a strange song. For the search for the sanctuary in Breath of the Wild, see A Song of Storms. When played, you can evoke rain, reveal secret caves, and water the magic beans shoots to produce fairies. 96 (OOT) | MM) AA "Sharp sold his soul to the devil and A was the one that closed me in here... And if you ever meet my brother, I'd like you to inform him... Other appearances Music theory The "Song of the Storms" A in triple time and features a 4-bar intro. Although the piece is only 11 bars long, it uses two different sets of instrumentation to add variety. It represents his sadness at losing his brother Sharp and his anger at his betrayal[2]. If Link plays the song to Sharp in the spring water cave, it will reanimate the Ikana River.
